

The Dying Potentate.

DOM PEDRO II,
EMPEROR OF BRAZIL, REPORTED SICK
A FEW DAYS AGO.

The shocking news from Rio de Janeiro that the good Emperor of Brazil is alarmingly ill, causes general concern. His death would be a sad blow to his country. Their leader in progress and national aspiration, a gentle and wise ruler, Dom Pedro is indeed the father of his people. He has visited some of the leading countries in Europe, and the United States, everywhere making admirers and friends.

Brazil has been an independent state since September, 1822, and an Empire almost as long. The first Emperor was Dom Pedro, father of the present sovereign, and the eldest son of King Joan VI, of Portugal. He abdicated the throne in 1831, and his son, then not six years old, succeeded him. The young Emperor was declared of age in July, 1840, in his fifteenth year; and his coronation took place the next year. He married Theresa, daughter of Francis I, king of the Two Sicilies, in the year 1843. Only one daughter survives of children of the couple, the Princess Isabel, Crown Princess of the Empire, who was born forty-one years ago. She was Regent during a prolonged absence of her father on his travels, and gave promise of being some day a wise Empress. Her husband is the Comte d'En, eldest son of the Duc de Nemours, of the Bourbon-Orleans royal stock of France. The eldest of her three sons, Prince Pedro, is about twelve years of age. Another daughter of the Emperor, the Princess Leopoldina, who died in 1871, left four sons, the eldest of whom is twenty-one years old. She was the wife of Prince August of Saxe-Coburg, Duke of Saxony.

The investigation by the New York assembly into the administration of justice in Brooklyn and its neighborhood has resulted in two reports, that of the Democratic minority finding no corruption or malfeasance.

Dispatches from central, northern and northwestern Texas report copious rainfalls in those sections, making the second general precipitation in those districts since May 1. The crop prospects throughout north Texas are greatly improved, with prospects of a largely increased acreage for cotton and corn.

The physique of the Emperor in his best days was that of a strong, active man. When on his travels he would startle persons in charge of public business by astonishingly early calls.

The live stock trains were all early at the market landing. We noticed yarded the usual variety of beef cattle, store sheep, veals and fat hogs. The movement, as predicated, a shade in buyers' favor, although the range in quotations is the same; yet commending the qualities we are of the opinion that buyers are somewhat favored.

Milch Cows.—There are too many slim cows in market; the demand is moderate.

The Sheep Call.—We figure 4000 head at Union Market. The bulk of arrivals are sheared sheep, yearlings and spring lambs; the latter show a marked decline. Other varieties a good smart 1/2 decline.

Fat Hogs.—Prices remain unsteady and supply of Western heavy. Northern dressed unchanged.

Veal Calves.—Market again off, with sales mostly from 2 1/2 @ 4 1/2 @ 5 lb.

Live Poultry.—A few crates noticed at 10 @ 11 @ 12 @ 13.
